RANK OLD TIMERS ON VISIT TO PASS

Mrs. J. A. McDonald, Edmonton, and Mrs. S. J. Watson, Vancouver, while on a holiday trip stopped over in the Pass the past two days to visit the district where they resided over 35 years ago, being residents of Frank shortly after the Slide and at the time of the Slide respectively.

Old friends of Frank and district will recall J. A. McDonald as operating while in the Frank hotel and S. J. Watson as early day druggist in Frank.

Mrs. McDonald and Mrs. Watson continued their journey today to Edmonton, with a couple of intervening stops. While here they were agreeably surprised at the number of early day residents they met who resided in the district prior to 1914.

CALGARY MAN BADLY INJURED

HIGH RIVER, Aug. 20.—Pinned under a heavy military truck when it went off the highway at a railway crossing near Alderside Wednesday about 2 p.m., and tipped over, William Royle, 133 14th Ave. Calgary, was seriously injured.

Removed from beneath the vehicle by a group of passing motorists who summoned aid from Alderside, Mr. Royle was rushed to the High River hospital by Snodgrass' ambulance. Believed to be suffering from a fractured skull, he was unconscious until 6 p.m. Authorities said tonight his condition was serious but he was expected to recover.

Royle was believed to have been under the upset truck for some time before he was discovered. He was not noticed when motorists first stopped, but a lot of his clothing protruding from under the cab revealed his presence.

ONLY FIVE DAYS TO BUY GROCERIES

Grocers, too, are thinking about the five-day week question, and near one-fifth of them have all but made up their minds it's a good idea. In a Dominion-wide survey just completed, Canadian Grocer discovered that 18.19 percent of those to whom the question was put are definitely planning to go on the shorter work-week schedule; that two-thirds of the grocers in Canada are generally in favor of the idea. Today only about 7% of Canada's independent grocery stores close one full day each week, the grocery business paper reports; and in every case it is Wednesday that gets the nod. There is not, however, this same unanimity among those intending to throttle down to a five-day schedule soon—about half of these prefer Monday, roughly a quarter Wednesday, and the fourth quarter Thursday.

Canadian Grocer points out that this same work schedule question is under serious consideration in the United States right now. In New Zealand the five-day week for grocers was made official by a recent ruling of the Court of Arbitration. And in the United Kingdom thumbs were down on the whole idea at a National Chamber of Trade conference—the verdict by the majority of all retailers was "wholly impracticable."

Average work week among Canadian grocers is in the 40—44 hour bracket. Shortest reported in the Canadian Grocer survey was 40 hours, longest 59. Daily hours range from 7 1/2 to 10 hours.

The X-ray film, particularly in surveys, is only a screen in tuberculosis confounding. It can only pick out the normal from the abnormal. It is the important clinical follow-up investigation that must tag the positive carrier.—Journal of the American Medical Association.

PROVINCE SUSPENDS 60 DRIVERS' LICENSES

Operating of Alberta's compulsory car liability act has resulted in 60 drivers' licenses being suspended according to information received by officials of the Alberta Motor Association. The new act which sets up a fund for compensation of those injured in accidents went into effect on April 1.

There are more than 150,000 licensed car drivers in the province. Of the 60 suspensions, about 20 drivers had their licenses returned when their owners posted either a bond or cash to cover estimated damage they had caused in motor accidents.

Forty suspensions still are in effect and the drivers will stay "banned" from driving on a highway until they have made good the damage caused. On the basis of $1 per license fee in addition to the regular license, the province has established a fund of $100,000. Damages and claims by persons injured in accidents are paid from this fund. No actual claims for payments have been made yet.

With the publication of High School examination results, students are deciding their future career. Nursing is a profession that is interesting, varied and full of opportunity. Nurses are well paid and are more greatly needed now than ever before. Several small hospitals in Alberta are almost desperate for graduate registered nurses. The proposed health insurance developments throughout Canada insure an abundance of employment after graduation. The entire employment outlook for nurses is very bright and the opportunity to serve others unlimited.

There are 11 hospitals in Alberta that have Schools of Nursing. In order to be admitted as a student nurse you must meet certain educational requirements. Specific information regarding an individual hospital must be obtained from the Superintendent of Nurses of that hospital.

All High School principals, High School Inspectors and District Public Health Nurses have been provided with a new general information pamphlet, called "Nursing a Profession" by the Alberta Association of Registered Nurses, and additional copies are available.

MORE VISITORS TO THE NATIONAL PARKS

Confirming earlier forecasts, the number of visitors to Canada's national parks showed a decided increase for the month of July—304,687 as compared with 305,204, an increase of 91,488 over July of last year. These figures do not include the national historic parks, for which complete returns are not yet available.

Banff National Park in Alberta with an increase of 26,512; Jasper National Park in the same province with an increase of 15,964; and Riding Mountain National Park in Manitoba with an increase of 13,523 showed the largest gains.

If this rate of increase is maintained during August and September, the million mark will be passed, and it is probable that the record total established in 1941 will be exceeded.

Obviously this increase in visitors to the national parks has put a heavy strain on ordinary accommodation facilities, but the operators of hotels and bungalow cabins have done a splendid job in taking care of the greater demand. More tents and cabin trailers are in evidence than at any time since the parks were established. Many of the camp-grounds have been improved and enlarged in order to handle the greater numbers making use of them.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT-STORY—

The Colorful Kid

By HOWARD BECKER

It is a well known fact, that Marty Burns is the smartest boy in the leather pushing racket, insofar as the managing end of the game is concerned. Everybody is aware of this fact, all the way from the president of the boxing commission down to the man who is hired to "lighten up" the ropes. Marty himself, in his diffident manner and large checkered vest, would, if pressed, explain the situation briefly. "Well, brother, I ain't exactly no dummy."

He was forever being plagued by slap-happy daddies, stendovers, and young kids flat out of diapers who imagined they were in need of managing. What most of them needed was a keeper or a nurse, but that's where Marty's talents came into play. Out of this mass of assorted cauliflower, he picked his scrapers with the caniness of a connoisseur. That's how he happened to get his hooks onto the Walls Walla Kid, and came to make the one and only mistake of his career.

This knuckle duster came bristling into the office one winter day with a crash and a bang. He tossed his newspaper hounds off the much-scarred mahogany of Marty's desk, and then spoke his place to the great man himself.

"I can lick anybody in the joint."

he told Marty. "Including you, Burns. But I ain't gonna." Marty Burns opened his mouth and closed it again. He was mildly shocked. It was a brand new approach.

"Get this Burns—You're looking at the Walls Walla Kid. I'm good. I'm dynamite with both mitts. I can take it all day, and I move around like an Attel. And," he hesitated for a moment. It was plain to see that the choicest morsel was yet to come.

"Th' colorful." Marty took gander at his big mug and had to admit he had color.

"Anything else?"

"The Kid considered this. 'Yeah, I fight at one fifty-seven, and I got one bad fault.'"

Marty was really stunned. "No!" "Yeah, I ain't no Einstein, Burns. Not a smart guy. That's why we're going to do each other some good. With your brains and my..."

"O.K. I'll get you Dago Samson at the Armory a week from tonight," that's the way Marty did things. No gymnasium trouts for his boys. He found out in a hurry whether they had it or they didn't.

Well, this guy had it. He was everything he said and more. He made hamburger steak out of Dago Samson for four rounds, and in the fifth out loose with a right uppercut that could only be heard. It traveled too fast to be seen with the naked eye. After the referee was through counting, the Kid hung the Dago over his right shoulder and set him down in his own corner, slopped a whole pile of water over him, and then started to make a speech. "O.K. That guy was all the color of the rainbow with a couple of extra thrown in."

"You're going to be all right, Kid," Marty told him. "And about your brains, I'll take care of that. I've got a set of signals worked out for your next fight. It'll be just as though I'm right in the ring with you. I run my hand through my hair, you cross your right. I pull my left ear, and you hold him out with your left jab. I twerk my nose and you hook him to death with the left."

"It's Jake with me, boss," the Kid said.

"What's this mean, Kid?" Marty twerked his nose for a demonstration.

"The Kid looked at him, 'Your nose itch, boss,' he said. No, the Kid wasn't exactly an Einstein.

After that Marty tried every known method of signaling his fighter, but the Kid kept on winning and doing the opposite to what the signal called for. The Kid just couldn't seem to remember from one minute to the next. He kept on winning, but every fight got tougher.

Marty told him, "You're the luckiest guy I ever saw. But one of these days you're going to meet some boss that knows all the answers, and I can't tell you what to throw from the corner, you're going to be cold turkey."

"It's Jake with me, boss," the Kid said, "about the signals I mean."

The next day they signed with Tiger Jones, who was right next to the champ. The Kid was a magnet at the gate.

Marty Burns went himself to a shadowy worrying about the Jones fight. He didn't sleep nights, trying to figure a way to get his brain into the ring with the Kid. He walked the streets. He smoked fifty cigars a night. The Kid could never take Tiger Jones without his, Marty's help. He was positive of that. Then two days before the fight, the Kid gave him the answer.

He was reading his press notices in the Morning Gazette. "Hey, boss, listen to this: THE WALLA WALLA KID IS PERHAPS THE MOST COLORFUL SCRAPPER TO HIT THE COUNTRY IN A DECADE."

"Colorful," Marty mused. "Colorful. That's it! Colorful, colors!" He slammed the Kid on the back. "You like colors don't you, Kid?"

"It's Jake with me, boss."

"All right. This is simple, Kid. So simple, I think even you can understand it. Now, listen close," Marty talked slowly to make sure it would penetrate the mystic thickness of the Kid's flaming skull. "I take three cards, of three different colors. I hold up the red card and you cross your right. Green card you jab with the left, and blue card you hook the left. Simple?"

"Simple," the Kid agreed, and this time he actually seemed interested in the idea.

They were hanging from the rafters at the Armory the night of the fight. Tiger Jones didn't waste any time loosening up the Kid's lower lip with a wicked wallop. The latter traveled too fast to be seen with his own brain that would finally win the fight.

The Kid was eyeing the corner. Marty flashed the green card for a jab, and the Kid tried to cross his right. Jones stepped in and slapped him into the room with a murderous uppercut. Marty growled. How could one guy be so dumb? He got up at five, a little uncertain, and looking for corners.

The Tiger was rushing. Marty flashed the blue card. A steaming left hook would send the Tiger to a walk. But the Kid was backing away jabbing with his left. The Tiger crashed through and dumped him in the corner for an eight count. That's just about the whole story.

Four rounds later, the referee stepped in and pushed a badly beaten Walls Walla Kid to his corner. He had boned off the boards nine times in four rounds, but he could take a pounding all right. No doubt about that.

Reporters circled Marty and the Kid after he had showered and dressed. "What beat him, Marty?" They shot the question at the little manager.

"His one and only fault beat him," Marty tapped the red head of the Kid. "Nothing between the ears."

The Kid managed a grin through shattered lips. "I've been holding out on you, boss."

"Yeah," I've got two faults instead of one."

"No?" Marty's eyebrows raised in disbelief.

"Yeah. I forgot to tell you that I'm color blind."

Canada-Argentina Deal Going Well

OTTAWA.—Oil and newspaper supplies are moving at a "nice rate" between Canada and Argentina, under an exchange agreement reached by the two countries last winter, Trade Department officials said.

The agreement provided for exchange of 9,000 tons of Canadian newspaper for 9,000 tons of badly-needed Argentine oil.

There had been "no complaints" from either country and Canada was getting "splendid co-operation" from Argentine authorities.

Edmonton Population Seen On Upswing

EDMONTON.—The 1947 Henderson's city directory lists the population of greater Edmonton at 125,000 persons. In the 1946 edition, the population shown was 120,900. These figures include the immediate suburbs of Edmonton such as Jasper Place and Beaverville.

Population of the city proper is in dispute. Last year's civic census gave it as 114,976 while the Dominion quinquennial census made it 109,997. The 1947 civic census now under way is expected to show an increase.

Sleep In Cave With Bear Cubs

KEETCHIKAN, Alaska.—Two brothers, Harold Lewis, 11, and Fred, 9, slept recently with a family of bear cubs in a cave.

Fred came out with some scratches and a minor bite from one of the cubs.

The father, George Lewis, took his sons fishing. They wandered away and he thought they had gone home until he returned to town.

The family dog led a search party to the cave.

All modern varieties of sugar beets are almost from two standard "improved" types.

Prairie Town Aply Named

BENEFIT, Sask.—On railway sidings near this town in the south-east corner of Saskatchewan, rows of coal cars replace the wheel-laden box-cars normally found on Saskatchewan sidings. And lines of coal tipplers replace the grain elevators that are almost inevitable at prairie points.

Early farmers labored unsuccessfully on this thin, unfertile clay. But near the turn of the century, coal was found nearby and since then farmers have turned in slack seasons to the coal mines to augment their incomes.

Early Scottish settlers were driven out by drought in the late 19th century. A wave of French-Canadian settlers followed, but they, too, moved on. It was only when farmers began to burrow for coal in the banks of the Souris river that the town took hold and prospered.

Today approximately 1,500 men earn their living in the deep-seam mines, and civic leaders estimate the town's business is double that of the average farm community in the province. In its early days, it was a "rip-roaring" as any boom mining camp.

But now residents say, "you'd never know it was pay day except to cash the cheques."

Heifer Learns Speed Playing With Deer

NESBOSPECK, Pa.—It's a different heifer which returned to Clarence Shaffer's farm after a five-month sojourn with a herd of deer.

The young bovine forgot it was not supposed to run fast and developed amazing speed.

The heifer escaped from Shaffer's farm when it was nine months old. Later, reports from the countryside told of the unique sight of a young cow ranging over fields and through the woods with four or five deer.

Shaffer said his deer farm finally attracted the heifer home.

HOW "TWEED" GOT ITS NAME

Post-war shortages have brought depression to the Outer Hebrides, off Scotland's west coast. Production of Harris tweed—the island's chief "crop"—has been drastically cut for lack of bichromate of soda, used in processing yarn. Britain's coal shortage is to blame.

On Lewis Island, largest of the group, nearly half the workers are idle. Normally about 5,000 men and women on the bleak little islands earn a living from production of the fabric which has made the names of "the islands of Lewis and Harris" known all over the world.

Actually, the two so-called "islands" are one. A rectangular peninsula jutting from the southern coast of Lewis is called the "daland" of Harris. Actually, also, twined is not twined, but twill. It received its name more than a century ago when a clerk by the name wrote "twined" Scottish for "twill." A further error transcribed "twined" to "tweeds," and the name has stuck so firmly that it is now the accepted term for the cloth. Production of the fabric from sheep to shipping is the chief industry of all the Outer Hebrides—eleven inhabited islands, five with only one family each. The output—all called Harris tweed—regardless of the island on which it is woven—is named for Lewis, pendant peninsula.

The name Harris is thought to be a corruption of an old Norse word meaning high. The south end of Harris rises to a height of 1,500 feet, with a higher peak nearer the isthmus connecting it to Lewis. Three miles north rises 2,622-foot Mount Clicham, highest peak in the Hebrides.

The crofters of the Hebrides are hardy and independent. So called from the crofts (small parcels of rented land) they till, they force a living from the rocky islands and the sea. The dependent town dwellers, on the contrary, even import bread from the mainland.

To quote the label on a Harris' tweed coat, the material is "woven by the crofters in their cottages on the islands of Lewis and Harris." These cottages are of locally-quarried limestone. Roof rafters are covered with turf, then thatched. Smoke from the peat fire in the living-room kitchen permeates the tweed, giving it a characteristic odor.

Cottages are often in three sections: one end with an outer door is reserved for livestock, with a half-door leading to the central section where the family lives. At the far end are sleeping-quarters. Dirt floors are favored over cement as absorbent, and warmer. Thick stone walls keep the house warm when winter winds sweep across from the Atlantic. The roof is held down by wire or rope net.—The War Cry.

Then there's the guy who stayed up all night to see the sun rise. And yep, it finally dawned on him.

GLASS MILK BOTTLE ON WAY OUT?

(Vancouver Province)
The milk bottle is going out and the milk carton is coming in. It is light, cheap, sanitary, impervious to sunlight which is harmful to milk. It does not have to be colored or washed and there is no deposit to be made on it. It is used only once and then goes into the discard.

The milk carton is coming into use in Vancouver and its advent will make practical some changes in milk distribution. It might even make milk cheaper for the family that buys milk in quantity.

He (haughtily): "I can go out with any girl I please."

She: "It's too bad you don't please any of them."

Astigmatism causes blurred or distorted vision, and narrowing the eyelids and contracting pupils, won't make up for it. Squinting causes strain, fatigue, general discomfort and often headaches.

The train was pulling out when a young man jumped on. As he stood panting, an elderly party said scornfully: "You young fellows don't keep yourselves in condition. When I was your age I could carry a cup of coffee in one hand, run half a mile and catch the 8:15 and still be fresh as a daisy."

"You don't understand, pop," said the young man. "I missed this train at the last station."

MANNERS FOR MODERNS

by Melissa

It is correct to ask a waiter for an explanation of dishes whose foreign names appear on a menu and you feel more comfortable too, if you know what the dishes are and how to eat them. Here are a few names of foreign dishes from a collection that I have been making:

Hors d'oeuvre means "outside the works," or the things that are eaten from the meal itself. They are usually served as appetizers before a meal. Smorgasbord is a Swedish variety of hors d'oeuvre; antipasto is Italian appetizer.

Vichyssoise is a French soup made with leeks and potatoes. Borsch is a Russian soup concocted from red cabbage and beets and served with sour cream. (Yogurt is a kind of soured cream.) Bisque is a rich soup with creamed shellfish or bird meat as a base, or any rich soup made with a puree. Bisque is also an ice cream dessert made with nuts or macaroons. Pate de foie gras is a goose liver paste. Ragout means stew. The word "croquet" means panache; Croquet Souffle are thin French panaches with a rich sauce.

Three foods that are apt to be confusing are ravioli, tamale and enchilada. Ravioli are small squares of cooked Italian dough filled with meat and spinach. They are eaten with forks. Tamale is a Mexican dish of corn, meat and seasonings wrapped and steamed in corn husks. You use a fork and eat everything but the wrapper! Enchilada is also a Mexican dish; it is made of meat and cheese stuffed into a corn meal pancake and served with a hot chili sauce.

Let's go traveling as we eat!

A man can have thousands of acquaintances and have very few friends.

TAKE CARE OF

YOUR WATER TRAP

The water trap in modern plumbing fixtures is not intended as a catch basin for articles that fall down the drain pipe, explains the Canadian Institute of Plumbing and Heating. This trap which is beneath all sinks, wash-basins, tubs and other fixtures, is designed to create a "water seal" in the drain and protect the health of the household by preventing rise of dangerous sewer gas through the waste lines.

In order to be effective, this U-shaped bend in the pipe must contain water at all times. Any little used fixture in the basement or garage where there is the possibility that evaporation might dry up the "water seal" should be run once or twice a month to refill the trap with water, advises the Institute.

Water in the traps of summer home fixtures should be drained off at the end of the season and replaced by anti-freeze or kerosene to prevent weather. If a siphon tank is used, the damage to the trap during freezing anti-freeze or kerosene should not be flushed into it when the home is re-occupied in the spring as they will destroy the bacterial action.

TOOTH REMOVAL

Pointing out that modern dental science can make satisfactory replacements of teeth, Canadian health authorities urge those with defective teeth to have them removed.

Sometimes, they point out, it's better to have nothing if not the best and no teeth at all is preferable to decayed molars, which may be spreading infection throughout the body.

Some men spend so much time trying to make a killing that they forget to make a living.

African Hunter: While wandering around a native village, I spotted a leopard.

Sweet Girl: Don't be silly. They grow that way.

WRITES R. A. BALMER, General Manager of a large Toronto furniture company. "After driving my new Oldsmobile 8 in winter weather and over roads unusually rough, I find you were very conservative in your recommendations, for the 'Hydra-Matic Drive' is certainly the smoothest thing in mechanism that I have ever experienced. I am really proud of this car, and for driving comfort, ease of handling, and general road-worthiness. I can only say I'm glad I bought an Oldsmobile. I made the smart choice."

And that's just an excerpt from one of the many, many letters sent in by Oldsmobile owners—letters that repeat again and again, "There's nothing else like it in driving! It's smart looking... smart handling... and the new 'GM Hydra-Matic Drive' is the smartest way of driving yet devised."

Yes... people who choose Oldsmobile make the smart choice... for Oldsmobile is the smart buy of the year. To you who are waiting for your new Oldsmobile—our thanks for your patience... our tribute to your wisdom. Farm Incomes

ALTHOUGH AGRICULTURE IS ONE of Canada's leading industries, in which 17.3 per cent. of the population is engaged, farmers as a class have not accumulated wealth to the same extent as those connected with the nation's other large industries. In fact, farm income in Canada represents only eleven per cent. of the total national income. It is true that some farmers are very prosperous, but there are also many who have never enjoyed financial profit in a fair proportion to the amount of money and labor they have invested in their farms. The farmers of Western Canada have continuously sought to improve their lot and many of their demands have received favorable consideration, for there have always been able men and women, both in agricultural organizations and in political circles, who have supported their interests. However, there have also always been groups who have shown little sympathy with the problems of agriculture.

Net Increases Are Not Great

The subject of farm incomes came up during the recent sessions of parliament, and the figures given at that time showed that although net farm incomes had more than doubled since 1939, farmers are still not enjoying any great measure of prosperity. Actual figures showed that net farm income had increased from $387,000,000 in 1939, to $1,000,000,000 in 1945. In the same period, however, operating expenses and depreciation had increased from $498,000,000 to $760,000,000. It was also brought to the attention of the people that although farm income had more than doubled in the last seven years, the average cash income realized by farmers prior to 1939 was only $743 per year.

Not Many Pay Income Tax

The low level of farm incomes was further emphasized by the fact that only about 4 per cent. of all farmers paid income tax in 1945-46, and although income tax inspectors were appointed to see that the matter of farm income "not more than 7 per cent. of all the farmers in Canada were making an income which the inspectors thought was sufficiently large to pay income tax on or to be checked further." When the importance of agriculture to every part of our national life is considered, it seems regrettable indeed that even in what must be regarded as a period of great prosperity, the cash earnings of the average farmer should be under $2,000 a year. It is not likely that these conditions will be quickly changed, but it is as well that the people should be made familiar with the fact that as things are at present, the average farmer is far from making an income proportionate to his contribution to the national economy.

NO PLACE ON FARM FOR CITY LOAFER

A farmer writing to a contemporary, objects to magistrates advising vagrants to "go out and work on the farms". When transient loafers and drunks appear in court, the lecture from the bench usually ends up with the advice to go out in the country and get an honest job—probably because they are not wanted in the cities.

PRAIRIE PROVINCES SHARE IN RECORD VOLUME OF CHEQUES

Continuing high velocity of money circulation, usually an indication of prosperous business conditions, is shown in the great volume of cheques cashed in Canada in the first six months of this year. Greater than in any similar period since the statistics were first collected, the total was $36,409 million compared with $34,484 million in the corresponding period of 1946, according to figures released by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Total for June was $975 million compared with $569 million in the same month last year, an increase of 65 per cent.

Each of the ten centres in the Prairie Provinces recorded advances, the greatest percentage increase shown in Medicine Hat where the total was $42 million, a gain of nearly 26 per cent. An increase of 17.7 per cent. was shown in Calgary, where the total cheques cashed amounted to $843 million. The deficit in Winnipeg exceeded $3 billion, the increase over the first half of 1946 being 6 per cent. The total for the three provinces was $5,544 million compared with $5,069 million. An increase of 17.8 per cent. was recorded for the three centres of British Columbia. The greatest percentage advance was shown in Vancouver, which moved up 19 per cent. to $2,571 million against $2,161 million last year. The total for British Columbia was $5,135 million against $2,662 million.

British Crisis Endangering U.S. Trade Plan

WASHINGTON.—The British financial crisis endangers the entire postwar American plan to create a system of world trade with a minimum of barriers, American officials said.

One of the major objectives of the $3,750,000,000 American loan to Britain—of which all but $1,000,000,000 has been used—was "to assist the government of the United Kingdom to assume the obligations of multi-lateral trade.

The United States and 16 other nations, including Britain, have been negotiating at Geneva for four months to create an international trade organization based on multi-lateral trade and to agree to reciprocal tariff reductions.

The present British crisis may go far toward upsetting early successful conclusion of the Geneva conference. The emergency conference in Paris of Undersecretary of State William L. Clayton, and U.S. Ambassadors Jefferson Caffery and Lewis W. Douglas will examine all possible repercussions of the British situation.

American officials here do not agree with former British Prime Minister Winston Churchill that the Labor government has "frustrated" away the American loan on movies and tobacco. They agree, however, that circumstances have caused the British to spend the money to keep body and soul alive rather than for capital goods for reconstruction which a year ago everyone had hoped would happen.

These officials point to the statistics which show that nearly half of Britain's imports from the U.S. have been foodstuffs. Tobacco imports were cut sharply in January and have been running since then to only about 10 per cent. of Britain's total imports in contrast to nearly 20 per cent. earlier.

The bulk of British imports from this country, however, have been raw materials for industry. British sources here pointed to the British food ration, which may face another cut in the attempt to attain super-austerity.

Orphans Shear 17 Lbs.

Two years ago Mrs. G. Randall, Salt Spring Island, B.C., had two motherless lambs given to her by a neighbor. Although no sheep-raiser herself, Mrs. Randall nursed the lambs, feeding them by bottle.

Recently the grown sheep were clipped, each producing more than 11 pounds of wool, handsomely rewarding Mrs. Randall for her efforts. British Columbia agriculture department officers reported the wool yield well above average, the normal wool clip being about seven and one-half to eight pounds per sheep.

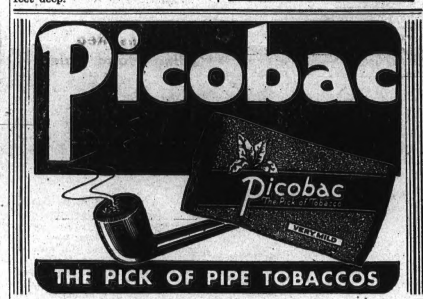

The only two sheep Mrs. Randall owns, they have been pastured in her orchard.

USE FOR OLD BRUSH

An old shaving brush is good for dusting painted lamp shades. The soft brush can't harm the fabric, and the long bristles remove dust easily from the folds.
